EndNote Web to Manage References

January’s EndNote Web introductory session was well-received and faculty have contacted us about offering more sessions. Faculty, staff, and students are welcome to attend.

Dates:
- Tues. April 3, 1:00-2:00 pm
- Thur. April 12, 12:00-1:00pm
- Wed. April 18, 11am-12pm

Place:
- Library Instruction Lab (L2211)

RSVP:
- Ellen Latorraca: latorrae@uww.edu or 262.472.5525

Reference librarian Ellen Latorraca will lead this workshop that will introduce the features and functionality of EndNote Web and allow hands-on time for participants.

This is a great opportunity to learn about EndNote Web, a web-based citation management service. EndNote allows users to import citations from hundreds of other databases and catalogs. Users can store up to 10,000 citations and create bibliographies in a variety of style formats.

In this hands-on introductory session you will:
- Create an EndNote account
- Get acquainted with the user interface
- Create groups for sharing citation collections with colleagues, students, and professors
- Add references to your library from online resources and by manual data entry
- Experiment with the Cite While You Write feature
- Learn about additional training such as free webinars, online tutorials, and more.

EndNote Web can be accessed from the Library’s list of databases or from within Web of Science. http://goo.gl/a34Cf For more information on EndNote Web, see our guide: http://libguides.uww.edu/endnote

Who Buys What for the Library

Faculty often ask us for status updates on what their department has ordered for the Library. We have a web app that allows you to look this up any time.

You may search by department, fiscal year and order status. This application is linked from the Library’s Faculty Services web page or use the direct link: http://geturl.uww.edu/1bz

De-stressing Students

Andersen Library will host a weeklong event, April 16-20, to give students healthy options for relaxing or taking a study break. The event will feature yoga, belly dancing, crafts, a coloring contest, and displays with books and audiovisual materials to help them manage stress. See the Library’s blog for a full listing of events and activities. http://blogs.uww.edu/library/archives/9118

ArtStor on Trial

The Art & Design Department has requested a trial of ArtStor Digital Library. But ArtStor can be used by faculty in many disciplines as it offers more than a million images in a broad range of subject including art, architecture, music, religion, anthropology, literature, world history, American studies, Asian Studies, classical studies, medieval studies, Renaissance studies, and more. See the Library’s trials web page to access the ArtStor trial: http://library.uww.eduguides/trials.html
