

December Letter from the University Library

December 1, 2008

University of Wisconsin-Whitewater

Library News

All the News You Can Use: ProQuest Newspapers

The New York Times may claim to have all the news that's fit to print, but the Library's news coverage doesn't stop there. We offer worldwide perspective on the news that's current as of today. ProQuest Newspapers offers more than 700 U.S. and international newspapers with coverage starting in 1980.

You may search all papers or limit a search to a specific paper. Papers include Wall Street Journal (1984-present), New York Times (1980-present), Chicago Tribune (1985-today), Milwaukee Journal-Sentinel (1995-present), Times (London, 1992-present), Wisconsin State Journal (1991-present). And for historical research, we offer ProQuest Historical Newspaper: New York Times (1851-2005) — the PDF files are complete with advertising and photographs.

Find ProQuest and other databases on the Library's Articles page:

<http://library.uww.edu/indexes/index.html>

ProQuest

VHS—A Dying Breed

Because the VHS format is a dying breed, purchasing new VHS tapes for the Library is not a good investment in our future. If you'd like to order a video for the Library, please look for a title that's available on DVD. If the title is essential and is not available on DVD, we will still consider purchasing the VHS format.

The Library is on the Move

The Library is working on making additional student-friendly study spaces. You'll notice that we've moved tables and chairs around on the main floor and are beginning to shift and consolidate the Reference Collection, which currently occupies a prime spot on the floor.

<http://blogs.uww.edu/library/archives/969>

We're (nearly) Always Open

The Library is open regular hours until Friday Dec. 12. Extended exam hours begin on Dec. 13.

We'll also be open during the semester break and Winterim. Check the web site for details: <http://library.uww.edu/hours.html>

In a Rush for Interlibrary Loan?

In a hurry for your interlibrary loan article? We can get you quicker turnaround with our commercial document delivery service. Currently this service is funded by the UW System. Just write "RUSH" in the Notes field of your ILLiad request and we will order the article directly from the publisher if available.

<http://wisconsin.hosts.atlas-sys.com/illiad/gzt/logon.html>