University of Wisconsin - Whitewater

EndNote Web Training for Faculty/Staff

EndNote Web Workshop

Date: Wed. January 25, 2012

Time: Noon-1:00pm

Place: Library Instruction Lab (L2211)

Snacks: Hors d'oeuvres & beverages

RSVP: Please reserve your spot by Jan. 19
(refdesk@uww.edu or 262.472.1032)

Reference librarian Ellen Latorraca will lead this workshop that will introduce the features and functionality of EndNote Web and allow hands-on time for participants.

This is a great opportunity to learn about the web-based citation management service from Thomson/Reuters. EndNote is part of the Library's Web of Science subscription and allows users to import citations from hundreds of databases and catalogs. Users can store up to 10,000 citations and can create bibliographies in a variety of style formats.

EndNote Web can be accessed from the Library's list of databases or from within Web of Science.

Overdues by Email

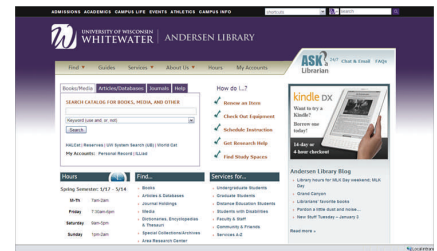

In an effort to "go green" and increase efficiency, the Circulation Department is moving to email-only final notices, starting in February.

Courtesy renewal notices and overdue notices were always sent out by email. But final notices were sent by campus or U.S. mail. Final notices are generated when fines are transferred to the Bursar's office (for students) and items are noted in the catalog as lost. We hope this change will decrease the number of overdue items.

Web Site Makeover

The Library web site has migrated to the new campus content management system. We hope the new structure and layout will make it easier for our users to do research on the Library web site. Links to the home page, articles, catalog, and course guides will remain the same. But all other pages on the Library web site (including e-reserves) will have new URLs. So test your Library links on D2L and call the Reference Desk if you need help finding something. 262.472.1032.

Wiley Online Library

Through a deal negotiated by UW-Madison and the CIC, we now have access to the Wiley Online Library for a very modest subscription price. This provides access to more than 1,200 scholarly journals published by Wiley and Blackwell (which is now owned by Wiley). You may search the Wiley Online Library directly or link to fulltext articles from the Find It button when using other Library databases. <http://geturl.uww.edu/17m>

Wilson Bought by EBSCO

The publishing world is no different from other industries when it comes to mergers and acquisitions. The venerable H.W. Wilson Company (publisher of Readers' Guide to Periodical Literature) was acquired by EBSCO Publishing in June, 2011. This month, the Wilson databases are transitioning to the EBSCO search interface and the Wilson interface will soon disappear altogether. This is a good time to update your D2L links to Wilson databases or articles.
