PsycArticles & PsycInfo on ProQuest

The Library has subscribed to PsycInfo and PsycArticles via EBSCO for many years.

The UW System, which funds PsycArticles, recently voted to switch to the ProQuest interface to save money. In the interest of keeping our two dedicated psychology databases on the same platform, we will also switch PsycInfo to ProQuest.

Look for these changes to take place around August 1. We will update our web site with the new links as soon as they are available.

Undergrad Research Help

If you are mentoring undergraduate (or graduate) researchers, Andersen Reference Librarians are available to help.

Whether students are writing research proposals or working on their projects and posters, please encourage them to schedule a consultation with a librarian.

Librarians are available to meet with your students over the summer or any time during the semester.

We can help them explore the best Library resources for their research as well coach them on literature reviews or using citation manager software.

Contact your librarian liaison to learn more.
