Chronicle of Higher Ed — Free to You

Since online databases and journals eat up the lion's share of the Library's materials budget, we carefully manage our subscriptions to get the most for our money. High search and retrieval numbers and low cost-per-use data make us happy because we know the resource is useful to you.

When we noticed that use of The Chronicle of Higher Education had declined by 28% this year (from 3,702 to 2,673 searches), we decided it was a good time to remind everyone of our campus-wide access with unlimited simultaneous users. The Chancellor's Office is kind enough to pay for this $3,800 annual online subscription.

Access is available on- and off-campus from the Library web site. In addition to reading The Chronicle, you can sign up for an account that will allow you to register for eNewsletter emails (e.g., The Weekly Briefing).

To find a list of the Library's online databases, use the Find Articles & Databases link on the web site. To find a list of the Library's journals, use the Find Journal Holdings list on the web site. The Chronicle is on both lists.

VPN for Login Issues

If you access Library resources from an off-campus computer that has a security firewall, the Library's proxy server won't work and, therefore, you can't login to the databases.

VPN gives off-campus users another option for logging into the campus network. This technology allows users to bypass the Library's proxy server. From off-campus locations, go to <https://vpn.uww.edu/> to login using your netID and password. Then navigate to the Library web site: <http://library.uww.edu>.

To learn more about VPN, see iCIT's Remote Access page: <http://www.uww.edu/icit/services/access/remote.html>.
